Ropes Course 2013 - 2014

The Lehigh University Ropes Course is committed to a core philosophy that promotes self-knowledge and leadership competence. Our teachings are based in the Relational Leadership Model in which values-based leadership is viewed as a process, rather than a position. We promote inclusiveness and seek to engage individuals in empowering, ethical, and purposeful skill building opportunities. Learning happens by “making meaning” of life experiences.

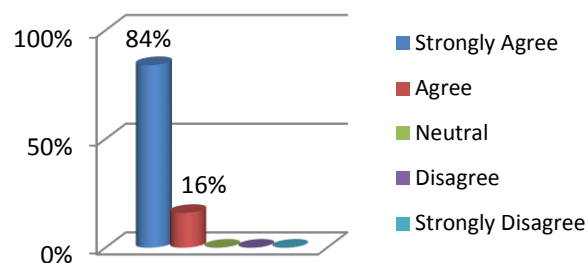

Participant Affiliation

What participants had to say!

- "This experience helped us see that we were a more productive and cohesive team than we had previously thought."
- "After the course was completed, the girls continued to thank me and express how much fun they had while on the course. During it I could tell that they were thoroughly enjoying themselves along with the facilitators."
- "It was nice to work together and learn from each other in a different capacity than our normal work environment."

I feel this event was beneficial to my group.
