Congratulations, and welcome to the Lehigh community! All of your hard work up until this point has certainly paid off, and you should be extremely proud of yourself. You should also be excited, as you are about to enter an amazing new chapter in your life! Your years at Lehigh will be filled with brand new experiences, opportunities to develop your passions, and the freedom to build positive relationships, all of which will help you discover what ‘success’ means to you.

I am going to share with you a few things I have learned over the past three years that I wish I would have known entering the Lehigh community. It is important to highlight that these are just tips, rather than a set of instructions. Your path at Lehigh is directed by YOU, and there is no one ‘right’ way to do anything!

1. Flip through this entire newspaper! I will only be able to briefly touch on the variety of amazing opportunities presented to you at Lehigh, but this collection of articles written by your new peers offer in-depth information and advice, and are a fantastic resource to have nearby as you seek ways to get involved on and off-campus. All that Lehigh has to offer is pictured in the following pages, so be sure to read through!

2. Do your best to stay true to yourself, and remain open to trying new things. While it can be somewhat intimidating to stray from what the majority is doing, it can be equally rewarding to take the time to explore your own interests. Looking back on my own experiences, signing up for classes or clubs by myself was a chance for me to meet new people with similar interests, and I regret the classes and clubs that I didn’t sign up for, more than I regret those that I did.

3. Embrace the imperfect. One of the best ways to grow is to make mistakes. When working towards your goals, you will inevitably fall short at times, but that’s okay! It’s not supposed to go perfectly on your first, second, or even your tenth try. Learning how to fail, adjust, and move forward will become an invaluable skill to hold as you take steps forward into Lehigh, and life.

4. Focus on the big picture, but also focus on the details. This was advice that my Dad gave me as I entered my first year, and I continually learn from it. Your time at Lehigh will go by faster than you could possibly imagine, therefore it is of utmost importance that you enjoy your time here. It is also important to remember why you came here: to learn, get a degree, and discover your professional interests.

Always keeping your future in mind and your academics among your top priorities will likely lead to you having a lot more fun. A strong performance in your first year will establish a strong foundation for the rest of your college years and beyond.

5. Take advantage of being the most social species on the planet. Make an extra effort to be polite to the Lehigh Staff and get to know them. Not just professors, but dining hall staff and custodians as well. Everyone in the Lehigh community plays an important role, and this will foster habits which will be beneficial to all your future encounters. Furthermore, acknowledge the resources prepared for you; utilize them to develop your social and professional networks. Do your best not to allow this new freedom to fully draw your attention away from the resources Lehigh has to offer. Everyone around you wants you to succeed, and the collaboration throughout the Lehigh community is one of a kind.

6. Search for classes or experiences that you feel engaged in. Actively seeking ways to push yourself out of your comfort zone is something I wish I did so much more of, as you will find it is harder to continuously develop when you are in a comfortable environment. Browse the syllabus before registration and sign up for a class you would normally never take. Sign up for 20+ clubs at the club fair, because you can always take your name off an email list if you decide it isn’t for you. If you think nothing at the club fair engages you, start your own club, and I guarantee other students will join you!

7. Sometimes you will achieve a victory just by stepping into battle. It is important to get involved, make mistakes, step out of your comfort zone, and learn from failing. However, as a college student, there will be days when you just feel burned out. Wanting to stay inactive all day at times is a natural part of college, and my advice for when you feel this way is to do something every day to bring you closer to your goals, even if it is extremely small. Momentum is a very important thing, and there will be times when you have tasks to complete and lack full motivation, which is why it is valuable to begin practicing discipline.

8. Last but certainly not least, have fun! This is your first time as a Lehigh student, and everyone around you is in the same shoes as you! Take in every moment you can as you make new friends, challenge yourself, try new things, and discover your passions. I know you are all going to have an amazing first year, and I hope some of this advice helps as you embark on the journey. Enjoy it all.

Bella Cammisa ’22

This is going to be the ride of your life. Cliché, I know, but stick with me on this one. You are entering an entirely new chapter in your life. New friends, new experiences and new passions. It’s your chance to discover who you are - and you’re finally in the driver’s seat.

Now sure, the thought of any new journey can be nerve-racking. And, if you’re anything like me, you’ll doubt yourself many times. Maybe miss a few exits, or take a few rogue turns. But it is in those times of doubt and uncertainty that you learn to trust yourself. You begin to fall in love with the possibility of what could be around the bend. So I urge you to take the road less traveled, push yourself beyond your limits. Join that club you always wanted to join in high school, take a class that is outside of your intended major, introduce yourself to a random person in the dining hall. Because you never know what can come out of it. You can find yourself driving an entirely new route, but loving every second of it.

And if you get nervous, or think that you’re headed in the wrong direction, turn around and start over! If you are dreading going to class - try something new. If you are looking for a different community, join a new club. Reflecting and recognizing that you need to make a change, or that you are loving what you’re doing is valuable, it’s not a setback. It’s easy to go through the motions and just follow the direction for the destination you set in the GPS hours ago, but maybe there’s a better route - or a better destination.

Basically, what I’m trying to say through this very long metaphor, is to embrace the journey and all that comes with it. The beauty of Lehigh is that everyone’s ride is different. Your twists will be someone else’s turn - you’ll be driving on a path that is entirely yours.

You choose your passengers, you choose the vibe, but most importantly, you choose your destination.

This is your ride. Enjoy it.

Oh! And welcome to Lehigh! We couldn’t be more excited that you’re here.

If I were to be asked what my favorite day during the fall semester would be, I would answer with the first Monday of classes. Now, my answer is not because it is the beginning of a new semester, although that is exciting. It is because that is the day the Club Fair occurs.

The sight always makes me smile. Rows and rows of tables lined up on the front lawn and walkway. A free Lehigh Wrestling t-shirt and tons of other S.W.A.G. People laughing and friendly reunions occurring, all on a beautiful sunny day in August. As a first-year, I walked through the tables amazed, but overwhelmed at all the opportunities that lay in front of me: Astronomy Club, Rugby, Ultimate Frisbee, Student Senate, and hundreds more. I remember the feelings that came over me, I had no idea what to sign up for and I was scared of going too far out of my comfort zone. It was the people behind those tables that inevitably helped ease my worries. The friendly faces of smiles and encouragement of the club members, as they offered advice and insight into their own clubs.

My advice to you: write your name down for every club that even slightly interests you. There is no harm in trying something new to see if you like it. The next four years are filled with endless opportunities. Staring now and finding your culture at Lehigh is what will ensure that you have fun AND people to share it with. My next club fair, I was fortunate enough to be the one behind the table, welcoming new students and encouraging them to write their names down.

Another thing that I cannot stress enough, it is never too late to find something new or join a club. The students at Lehigh have a special way of making you feel so welcomed and at home, no matter who you are, where you are from, or what you have done. We want you here and we want you to find your home here as well as we have. Don’t be afraid to accept the new opportunities and challenges that arise as you become a member of the Lehigh community, and remember, there is always something or someone out there for you!

To the incoming class, welcome! We are all excited to have you be a part of the entrepreneurial Mountain Hawk community! During your time at Lehigh, you will have countless opportunities to push the boundaries of the conceivable while striving to make the world a better place. Truly, there is no better place to explore entrepreneurial pursuits.

Whether you are an indefinite or definite optimist, over your tenure at Lehigh you will have access to resources and programs that will aim to translate ideas into reality, in turn changing the course of the future.

Prior to getting into the plethora of entrepreneurial opportunities Lehigh provides, one must understand the cornerstones of Entrepreneurship at Lehigh. The first is the Baker Institute, the campus entrepreneurial hub, whose goal is to inspire and enhance students’ ideas and help them bring their ideas to fruition by fostering entrepreneurship, creativity, and innovation. Located on Mountaintop campus, the Baker Institute should be every student’s first stop on their quest to pursue any entrepreneurial endeavor.

The second cornerstone of entrepreneurship at Lehigh is the Lehigh@NasdaqCenter located in San Francisco. The center offers several programs to allow students to gain a global entrepreneurial mindset while starting to build a network of entrepreneurs. Although the center is located roughly 2,800 miles from Lehigh’s main campus, the center offers virtual courses for students and the occasional in-person event for alumni in the Bay Area.

Now that the entrepreneurial cornerstones of Lehigh have been introduced let us dive into the resources they provide.

For those of you who identify as indefinite optimists, believing that there will be a better future but are not sure how to achieve it, Lehigh offers resources to connect students with entrepreneurs across the globe. Lehigh offers a variety of opportunities including traditional academic tracks such as pursuing an Entrepreneurship Minor or being a part of Lehigh Silicon Valley, a 3-credit program over winter break which introduces students to the startup ecosystem. Outside of the classroom, Lehigh offers several experiential learning programs striving to connect students with entrepreneurs. One of these programs is the Global Entrepreneurship Fellowship, where selected students are paired with a startup from anywhere in the globe and tasked with company projects during the 10-week summer internship.

Another similar program is the Lehigh@Nasdaq Startup Academy, where a cohort of ten to twelve Lehigh students from a variety of majors are relocated to San Francisco and assigned to a variety of early to mid stage startups. The Startup Academy, similar to the Global Entrepreneurship Fellowship, challenges their respective cohorts to think outside the box while providing lasting mentorship opportunities through Lehigh’s expansive entrepreneurial network.

On the other hand, if you consider yourself a definite optimist, believe in building an actionable plan for a better future, Lehigh offers several opportunities through the Baker Institute for Entrepreneurship. These include but are not limited to Eureka! Pitch Nights, The Hatchery, New Ventures Club, and Design Thinking Workshops. Eureka! Pitch Nights, similar to the hit show Shark Tank, offers students the opportunity to pitch their ideas to a panel of local entrepreneurs gaining advice and top scoring ideas/companies receive cash grants to assist with building out the project. The Hatchery, a student accelerator, allows students to pursue their entrepreneurial pursuits over a summer while having access to resources and mentors provided by the Baker Institute. The New Ventures Club works as a student-run organization to provide students with real-time exposure to the startup ecosystem around campus.

Whether you consider yourself an entrepreneur or not, Lehigh has a vast set of resources that allow anyone to learn more about entrepreneurship or found a company. Know that Lehigh’s growing entrepreneurial network will always be there for you, so don’t be afraid to make the most of it. Hopefully you now have a better grasp of the entrepreneurial ecosystem at Lehigh, so I’ll leave you with this… You only have a finite time in college, don’t be afraid to dream big with your peers and come to embrace each failure as a learning experience.

Let the Baker Institute teach you how.

Nobody is expected to arrive at college with their entire journey planned out. When I came to Lehigh as a first-year, I was undecided on my major, my future career, even which on-campus clubs I wanted to join. These are all decisions that will come with time as you become more familiar with Lehigh and its many opportunities. Luckily, the OFYE and your Draft Book provide a tool to help you through this exciting and self-reflective process!

Your bLUeprint can be whatever you want it to be. Whether it’s a list of core values that you find most important, a collection of notes on the clubs and opportunities and that you are interested in during your initial explorations, or a detailed description of what you have accomplished thus far in your life and what you wish to accomplish in the future, a bLUeprint is your place to express whatever is going on in your head—your place to start paving the path that you will walk throughout your time at Lehigh. These spaces to reflect are conveniently located inside the Draft Book, including some helpful leading questions and areas where you can write your own notes. The bLUeprint is really whatever you make of it, so take some time to think about how this tool will help you in the years to come. Are you a planner who likes to have the steps you will take predetermined? Or do you just want some broad ideas to come back to every once in a while, to remind you what your goals are? Like many things in college, the choice is yours.

Another great thing about the bLUeprint is its flexibility, so make sure you write everything down in pencil! Your Lehigh path may not be straight and direct. For example, one of my original goals was to study abroad. When COVID threw a wrench in my plans, however, I switched my focus and devoted myself to research with a professor, another one of my goals, and I also decided to apply for a position that required me to be on campus the spring of my junior year. What you commit to now, during your early days as a college student, does not have to completely dictate your future.

So, take advantage of the available resources and information during Orientation. Attend 5x10s and learn about different programs, initiatives, and majors. You are required to go to at least five of these events during the first ten weeks of the semester, and they will be extremely helpful in building your bLUeprint! Furthermore, after Orientation you will have the opportunity to build connections with faculty members and students during a program called NavigateLU. This will give you another chance to reach out for help if you need it and learn about the resources on campus. All of this is elaborated on in more detail in your Draft Book, but everything is there to support you as you embark on your Lehigh journey.

Everyone’s path at Lehigh is different, and yours may change over time, but the bLUeprint is here so you can physically map out your plan in a way that works for you. Good luck, and remember, the OFYE is always here to support you along the way!
First, congratulations on getting into Lehigh! This is no easy feat, and you should be proud of yourself for this accomplishment. For a lot of you, this may be your first college experience, and your first time living on your own. There are lots of benefits to this; it brings independence and freedom, allows you to make your own choices, and create your own path. Lehigh presents this opportunity by offering numerous extracurricular activities and a wide range of courses. I have learned that there is always something to be doing at Lehigh, whether it be studying for exams, making a pitch for a stock in one of Lehigh’s many business-related clubs, or playing Spikeball at the Broughal Middle School field. But with this freedom comes great responsibility. As much as exploring your interests is important at school, it is equally important to take care of yourself both mentally and physically. Being on your own presents many challenges which can be stressful and overwhelming.

One technique I picked up along the way has been sticking with a routine. Some people make college sound like it is constant work with no breaks between studying. However, if you manage your time well, you will have plenty of time to hang out with friends, explore South Bethlehem, and the multitude of opportunities that Lehigh offers. Thus, it is important to minimize procrastination and focus on getting things done so that you can do more of what you love.

Self-care has different meanings for everyone. For some, it can mean getting good night’s rest and “recharging your battery” through meditation. For others, it can be aiming for a healthy diet and/or exercising regularly. Let’s clear the air on a misconception with self-care; making a conscious effort to take care of yourself is not being selfish. Rather, it promotes optimal well-being, allowing you to achieve your goals more easily. I set a small goal for myself each day, whether it be to eat a balanced meal, exercise, or get work done for class. When I accomplish these small, but important tasks, I feel happy and energized to take on the rest of my day and the rest of my week. It can seem daunting when a long research paper is thrown on your plate, or a group presentation deadline is looming ahead. But, by prioritizing tasks one at a time, your workload can seem far more manageable.

Nevertheless, as first-year college students, we can’t always manage these everyday stressors on our own- and that’s okay! Lehigh offers Counseling and Psychological services to assist Lehigh students with personal, social, and academic growth and discovery. Lehigh cares about its students and wants them to be in the best mental state as they transition into life on their own. I have personally dealt with mental health issues, and the most important thing I learned about getting better is the need to communicate. If no one knows that you are struggling, the odds your situation will improve become slim. Thus, I encourage you to take advantage of Lehigh’s mental health counseling, as they are always in your best interests.

College is all about developing a clearer sense of identity and learning what you love. Some view it more simply as a transition into the “real world” and the daunting truths this comes along with. However, if you remain mindful, live in the present, and do your best to make the most of your experience, you will be fine- I promise. Congrats again on your admission to the best school and I can’t wait to see you around campus this fall!

S’more Fun to be had at Camp Hawk

Nick Schorn ’24

Things can get a little hectic during your first year at Lehigh. In fact, I am no stranger to the anxiety of managing the challenges that are part of moving into a new school. Even during COVID when I had to live in a single room, maintaining that balance between schoolwork & a social life was difficult. During such a chaotic period, it would be great to just unwind while having a good time and meeting new people.

Luckily, Camp Hawk is the perfect opportunity to relax and have fun, while also evaluating how you are doing during this time! Camp Hawk is a weekend-long retreat organized and designed to help first-year students, such as yourself, to take a step back and see how their first semester at Lehigh is coming along. Through all sorts of enjoyable camp games, conversation with new people, and the famous Iron Hawk Competition, you will be able to take a hard-earned break from your first semester at Lehigh.

Every year the Camp Hawk staff works to create a fun-filled experience and this year is no different. 60 first-year students and our 9 upperclass staff will head out to Camp Canadensis in the Pocono Mountains from Friday afternoon through Sunday. With the continuation of Iron Hawk, you will be put into a team with other students to work together and compete in a friendly head-to-head competition of camp games, brain teasers and other fun activities. And after the day is done, you get to relax and hang out with all your new friends. Did I mention s’mores?

Camphawk 2021 is shaping up to be a meaningful and exciting experience, and I would love for you to be a part of it! Do not miss out on a great chance to learn about yourself, Lehigh, and other students while enjoying the great outdoors!

As you begin your first year at Lehigh, it’s normal to feel intimidated, yet excited for everything that’s about to happen in your life. This past year and a half has been challenging for everyone and it seems like finally there is a light at the end of the tunnel. As we all get back to some sense of normalcy, we can look forward to the future with excitement and optimism.

One of the many things you can look forward to at Lehigh is joining various extracurriculars and getting involved in the community, and what better way to get involved than to become a representative for your fellow students?

As Lehigh University’s branch of student government, Student Senate is composed of elected Senators who work to bring students’ concerns to light, helping make effective changes and improvements to our campus and our surrounding communities. Essentially, Senate is the voice of the student body, and as a Senator, you can help give your peers a voice and help make changes to campus that will benefit all present and future students. As time goes on, Senate will only have more opportunities to enact change on campus and you have the chance to be part of that change and say you worked to make Lehigh University a better place for all students.

Welcome to Lehigh! You are a part of the Lehigh family, but you are also now a member of the Bethlehem community! Some of my best memories over the past few years have been exploring the surrounding city I call my home-away-from-home. In addition to everything that is offered on our campus, take time to venture out and try something new.

Coming into college, I had no idea how many amazing food options were available in our neighborhood. South Bethlehem is filled with incredible restaurants and opportunities to try a variety of food. Some great places include El Jefes for customizable burritos and rice bowls or U & Tea for Chinese food and bubble tea! Don’t forget to grab a coffee from some of our coffee shops such as Deja Brew, Lit Roastery, and Sazby’s. One of my favorites is Roasted on W. Fourth Street for brunch!

In addition to the endless food options, there are tons of activities you can do with your friends. A great place to hang out is the Bethlehem Greenway located just a few blocks off campus - it’s about 2 miles long and is great for exercise or eating outside with friends. Another place to explore is the North Side! It’s a great downtown area with cute shops and restaurants. Just a few miles up the road, the Promenade Shops of Saucon Valley has an AMC movie theater and stores for shopping.

Get involved! The Community Service Office is always setting up opportunities for Lehigh students to volunteer and get to know South Bethlehem. My favorite event I’ve attended is Broughal Bowling where Lehigh students pair up with middle school students, help them do some school work, and go bowling afterward. There are so many amazing opportunities to get involved and truly become a part of the neighborhood we live in.

Make the most of your time in Bethlehem, and take every opportunity to explore the city and try new things! You are going to find your own favorite food and coffee spots, in addition to your favorite places to meet up with friends. No matter what your interests are, there is something for you in Bethlehem!

MEAL PLAN LINGO

Meal: All You Care to Eat is available for breakfast, lunch and dinner at our three student restaurants: Cot @ Lower UC, Rathbone and Brothrad. All plans are designed for one meal swipe by the plan holder per visit. However, Carle Elanche and Stock Plans will allow for multiple visits during the same meal period.

Dining Dollars: Dining Dollars - This declining balance account can be used exclusively at all Lehigh University Dining locations. Dining Dollars are non-refundable, non-transferable, and will carry over from Fall semester to Spring semester only.

Meal Credits: When you purchase a meal plan, you have the added benefit of meal credits that you can use at a variety of retail locations across campus. A Meal Credit is a cash value applied to your food purchases at retail locations on campus for those times when you don’t eat at Rathbone, Lower UC or Brothrad. This increases the flexibility of your meal plan. In exchange for a regular meal swipe, you receive a credit toward the total cost of your retail purchase. The balance of your purchase can be paid with Gold Plus, Dining Dollars or cash.

Health and wellness is one of the top priorities here at Lehigh. To ensure that you successfully transition to life on campus, we want to help students form positive habits that you can implement in order to live a healthy and active lifestyle, both in your time here at Lehigh and beyond. It is common for people to wait until they begin experiencing negative “symptoms” before deciding that it’s time to make healthier choices—but we’re not going to let that happen to you!

Exercise:
Club sports teams are one way for you to get active and meet some new people. They often meet at Taylor Gym, the home to many of Lehigh’s recreational activities. It is there that you will also find the Welch Fitness Center, which includes facilities like swimming pools, basketball and racquetball courts, and a rock-climbing wall – just to name a few. For those who enjoy exercising in a more structured environment, there are also fitness instructors at Taylor Gym who host a variety of group classes that range from Circuit Training to Power Yoga.

However, we do understand that your time is limited, so it’s important to understand that any physical activity is better than no physical activity. If you find that you’re too busy to join a club sport or to make it to a fitness class, try to take short walks in between study sessions to get your blood flowing. Asa Packer Campus, with all of its hills and steps, will help to keep you honest!

Nutrition:
This is an aspect of health that is often overlooked. For some first-year students, college is the first time in their lives that they are responsible for deciding when, where, and what they will eat for all of their meals. Forming healthy eating habits can play a big role in the prevention of illness down the road. Fortunately, both Lehigh and the South Bethlehem community are home to a plethora of options that can satisfy all of your dietary needs and preferences.

You’ll learn more about the specifics of those options throughout the orientation process, so I’m going to focus on a few factors to consider when choosing which foods to eat. The first is protein: many foods that are considered to be tasty have ample amounts of carbohydrates or fats in them, which are necessary—but some of them may lack protein. Be sure to include healthy sources of protein in your diet, whether that be from eggs, poultry, fish, or dairy products. Some plant-based options for protein include beans, nuts, and whole grains. Another important factor is to include produce: try to consume fruits and/or veggies at every meal! Fruits and veggies are loaded with micronutrients—necessary vitamins and minerals—that will give you energy and boost your mood so that you can ace those exams. Lastly, be sure to drink enough water! This is another task that many people struggle with, and a lot of ill feelings can be attributed to dehydration.

Additional tips:
Aside from staying physically active and making healthy eating choices, it is incredibly important that you be sure you are getting enough sleep. Sleep loss from staying up late to finish a paper or cram for an exam can have a much worse impact on performance than that extra hour or two spent working can make up for. Do your best to stay on top of your assignments and work commitments to ensure you can get enough sleep every night. Adequate rest is possibly the most underrated key to success in college, so make sure you get enough of it! I know how difficult it can be to maintain a healthy lifestyle, especially in that first year of college. If you feel that your health is slipping in any way, feel free to reach out to your orientation leader for some advice—that’s what we’re here for!
Lehigh’s commitment to student success extends outside of the classroom with over 1,000 students participating in research each year—highlighting the importance of enhanced critical thinking, analysis, and communication skills. Research at Lehigh strives to explore new possibilities, connect disciplines in unprecedented fashions, tackle the most challenging questions, and empower communities. The university offers ample research opportunities for students across all academic disciplines, including the ability to conduct research under a faculty mentor, self-direct an independent research project, or work within a Lehigh founded research organization.

When it comes to getting involved in research at Lehigh, it’s as easy as finding what aligns with your passions and ignites your curiosity. Students can explore faculty led research projects on the university’s website and search for research projects by department and/or academic discipline. Lehigh’s five colleges also provide an array of programs that enable students to undertake their own research, independent study, or capstone projects and to receive grant funding for these unique projects. In addition to these research opportunities, Lehigh has founded several research centers and institutes that encourage students to apply for life-changing educational experiences and create a world-wide impact.

If students have questions pertaining to what research opportunity aligns best with their interests and future goals, academic advisors and professors can provide insight and help them form connections with other faculty members. Whether it’s researching ways to use nuclear fusion as a potential energy source or developing a metric to forecast pitchers’ future success, research at Lehigh helps students fulfill their curiosities, make an impact, and grow as an individual.

Trauma Informed Yoga

Trauma-informed yoga is a research proven way to help those experiencing trauma and vicarious trauma heal from their trauma symptoms. It is a combination of focused breathing and mindfulness skills, as well as healing poses. It is an opportunity to learn how to work with your own discomforts. It is a judgement free zone where every participant is able to go at their own pace and skill level. The practice is not meant to be a high cardio or strength training workout, it focuses on grounding, breathing, and mindfulness with comfortable, stretching poses. Our instructor, Liz Jordon, is certified in trauma-informed practice. The instructor does not leave her own mat and will never touch participants to adjust their pose throughout the practice. It is a space where your body is entirely yours.

Students, faculty, and staff of all gender identities at all levels of healing from trauma are welcome and can benefit from trauma-informed yoga.

Fall 2021 classes will be held Wednesdays from 4:30-5:30 pm. All classes are free and yoga mats are provided if needed.

THINKING THROUGH TECHNOLOGY
Professor Greg Ferguson
EVEFM 520
Are new technologies changing our views of metaphysics (what’s real) and morality (what’s right)? Participants in this interactive session will discuss how recent advances in fields such as neuroimaging, virtual reality, artificial intelligence, and social networking might be changing how we see ourselves and how we approach the choices we face.

VAMPIRE RIGHTS
Professor J. Golde
Maginnes 101
This program introduces students to the complexities of political engagement. Students will learn about the ways in which civil rights and civil liberties are integral to democratic practices and the dangers of authoritarianism. This is an esential exercise that facilitates critical reflection on the personal and social challenges of working toward a diverse, inclusive, and equitable society.

ACING COLLEGE THROUGH PSYCHOLOGICAL SCIENCE
Professor Linda Rodriguez
STEPS 490
What is the best way to study? How do you learn new things? How do you mentally prepare yourself to succeed in college? All of these questions are answered through psychological research. This lecture provides pro tips of how to succeed at college through the power of psychological science.

HOW TO MANAGE YOUR ENERGY:
A GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE
Dr. Lisa Rodriguez
STEPS 190
To create, impact, and contribute, you need to get your own energy together. Around the world, indigenous groups and others think in energetic terms. In this session, based in Ayurvedic teachings, learn what your typical energy pattern is, what it looks like out of balance, and how to redirec it.

MAKING MUSEUMS MATTER
Dr. William B. Crow
LUGO Main Gallery
Museums are no longer dusty storage houses of the past. They are places that spark creativity, curiosity, and new knowledge on topics that are relevant to our world. Discover the Lehigh University Art Galleries and how you can get involved!

WHAT CAN REALITY TV TEACH US ABOUT OURSELVES?
Professor Danielle Lindemann
Packard 416
It can be hard to take reality TV seriously, and at first glance, the people who inhabit these shows may not seem very much like ourselves. However, by applying a sociological lens to these programs, we can better understand a variety of forces that operate in our own lives. Are you ready? It’s time to get real.

A CHEMIST’S MUSINGS ON THE MAMMALIAN SMELL SENSE
STEPS 190
The Nobel Prize in Medicine and Physiology awarded a few years ago for unraveling the olfactory system provides a delightful opportunity to reflect on the different kinds of thinking involved in systematic advances and abrupt discoveries. It also serves as a wonderful example of new understanding “fitting” from field to another.

GETTING TO KNOW YOUR NEW HOMETOWN:
A CITY PLANNER’S PERSPECTIVE
Professor Karen Beck P Revel
Packard 208
Our neighborhoods play a huge role in our physical and mental well-being, access to opportunity, and ability to connect with those nearby. These places don’t just shape us; we shape them. Hear more about South Bethlehem and how you might put your own stamp on it while at Lehigh.

THE MAGNETISM OF ROCKS AND EARTH HISTORY
Professor Ken Kodama
STEPS 101
Scientists can measure the ancient magnetization of rocks that was acquired when they formed. This fossil magnetism, or paleomagnetism, is used to determine the ancient direction and intensity of the Earth’s magnetic field. It also constrants the ancient geography of Earth’s continents, the movement of far-travelled micro-contients, the tectonic rotation of regions, and the timing of the nucleation of Earth’s solid inner core.

SO, YOU WANT TO USE YOUR STEM DEGREE AS A SPRINGBOARD TO PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL?
Professor Lawrence Tartagli
Maginnes 260
Some of us have wanted to go to professional school (e.g., Medical, Dental, Graduate, etc.) for as long as we can remember, while others might figure out their paths (e.g., Medical, Dental, Graduate, etc.) for as long as we can remember, while others might figure out their paths during, or after college. But do you know what it takes to get there? In this session we will look at historical trends, admissions standards, and the unique aspects of an applicant’s resume/CV that will help you stand out among a sea of highly qualified candidates?

STRONGER, SMARTER, FASTER, AND... TASTIER! MATERIALS SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING DOES IT ALL!
Professor David Schindel
Sidhna Pimpukar, Lesley Chew, Sabrina Jedlicka
Packard 416
What do ultra-strong materials for flying vehicles, smart quantum-based computers, fast production of multi- story tall notebook engines, and tasty ice cream have in common? They all start with innovations in Materials Science and Engineering! Come learn about how materials science has repeatedly revolutionized society!

IS ARCHITECTURE SUSTAINABLE?
Professor Nik Nikolaou, AIA
Packard 360
The biggest issue shaping the future of our cities, and our nation, is the question of how we grow. Housing production in the U.S. is overwhelmingly concentrated in low-density areas. For most of the 20th century, the concept of mass home ownership seems an inseparable part of American culture. We look for the idea’s origins in the 20th c. (mobility, energy and material use) and ultimately ask: is buying a home all it’s cracked up to be? We will discuss examples and what we can do in the third decade of the 21st century.

PERSONAL BRANDNG - "THE NEED TO BE DIFFERENT"
Professor Steven Savino
Rauch 251
No matter what Major you choose, Personal Branding is about how to differentiate oneself such that you are better positioned for Job and/or Internship placement. Personal Branding enables students to uniquely develop a career growth plan, with tips on how to win their desired job or internship.

100 YEARS OF AEROSPACE ENGINEERING
Professor Terry Hart
Maginnes 101
The progress made in the past 100 years of aerospace engineering has been nothing short of spectacular, from the Wright brothers, to the landings on the Moon, deep space probes and rovers on Mars, as well as many commercial successes, including Boeing’s 787 Dreamliner. Professor Hart reviews this history and shares many of his personal stories of his involvement.

BIOENGINEERING THE FUTURE
Professor Tommy Pavlik
STEPS 250
Improving health is one of the great scientific and engineering challenges. This will require a better understanding of the human body, earlier diagnosis, and new types of therapies. Come find out how bioengineers are inventing the technologies that will help people around the world live longer, healthier lives.

GAME AND PLAY
Professor Will Lowery
Maginnes 112
Theatre can be studied through games, and games can convey theatricality. But how can game and story intersect in performance? We’ll explore Lehigh’s devised production of GPS, and see how rules blend with theatricality. How a game prompts creativity. How a play—a story—can help you live longer, healthier lives.
